Kavod Shabbos

Simon 242

Seif 1 סעיף א

BASIS OF THIS SEIF Kavod Shabbos | Oneg Shabbos

– Honoring Shabbos is the subject of the seif. Oneg was explained by the Neviim – "and you shall call Shabbos a delight" (Yeshaya 58:13); some Poskim hold its essence is from the Torah (MB 1).

– Laundering on Thursday is an enactment of Ezra, because of kavod Shabbos (the seif) – so that Friday is free for the needs of Shabbos (MA 3).

Melacha: None – this seif is about a positive mitzva, not a prohibition (Introduction, Part Four).

The Source of Kavod and Oneg

The Mishna Berura (1) opens the siman by defining the mitzvah. The primary source for oneg Shabbos is the words of the Navi: וקראת לשבת עונג (Yeshaya 58:13). Some Poskim hold that its essence is mid'oraisa, since Shabbos is included in the mikra'ei kodesh, and the Sifra explains mikra kodesh to mean sanctifying the day by honoring it with clean clothing and delighting in it with food and drink.[1]

Chazal (Shabbos 118a – 119a) speak very strongly about this mitzvah: whoever delights in Shabbos is given a boundless inheritance (nachala bli metzarim), is saved from the subjugation of the nations, and merits wealth.

The Taz's Opening Question

The Taz begins with the Gemora (Shabbos 118b) brought in the Tur: whoever keeps Shabbos properly, even if he served avoda zara like the generation of Enosh, is forgiven. The Taz asks: if he did not do teshuva, how does Shabbos help? And if he did do teshuva, why is Shabbos needed?

He answers that he did do teshuva. However, for severe aveiros such as kareis and misas beis din, teshuva alone only suspends the punishment until Yom Kippur and suffering complete the atonement (Yoma 86a). The Gemora is teaching that if together with his teshuva he keeps Shabbos properly, the teshuva itself achieves full forgiveness.

Aseh Shabbatcha Chol

HALACHA 242:1

Three statements of Chazal appear to contradict each other:

1. One must delight in Shabbos with fine food – large fish, choice meat and the like (Shabbos 118b).
2. Even something small, if prepared in honor of Shabbos, fulfils oneg. Rav Papa says: even a dish of small fried fish (kisa d'harsena) (Shabbos 118b).
3. Rabbi Akiva said: עשה שבתך חול ואל תצטרך לבריות – make your Shabbos like a weekday and do not become dependent on people (Pesachim 112a, Shabbos 118a).

[1] Vayikra 23:3 – וביום השביעי שבת שבתון מקרא קודש.

The Tur's Question to the Rosh

The Tur writes that he asked his father, the Rosh, many times about his own situation: he had a little of his own but it was not enough, and he was dependent on others. Is such a person included in aseh shabbatcha chol or not? The Rosh did not give him a clear answer.

The Tur later found the answer in Rashi's commentary on Pirkei Avos. Immediately after Rabbi Akiva's statement, the Mishna brings Yehuda ben Teima: הוי עז כנמר – be bold as a leopard. Rashi explains that the juxtaposition teaches that Rabbi Akiva only spoke about one whose situation is extremely pressed, but otherwise a person must push himself like a leopard and an eagle to honor Shabbos. This is the language of our Mechaber.

Three Levels – the Taz

The Taz explains the Tur's doubt and resolution at length. There are three categories:

Situation	Obligation
One who is well off (even if he normally economizes on food)	Must honor Shabbos according to his means.
One who has a little of his own but depends on others	Included in the obligation of oneg; for him even kisa d'harsena suffices – and certainly three seudos.
One who has nothing of his own and relies entirely on tzedaka	Not obligated in oneg; needs only two seudos. This is aseh shabbatcha chol.

The Tur's doubt was whether there are really two categories or three. Yehuda ben Teima's exhortation to "be bold" cannot refer to a wealthy man (he needs no encouragement – it costs him nothing) nor to one who has nothing at all (encouragement will not help him). It must refer to the middle level: one with a little of his own. Therefore the Tur concludes that every person should economize during the week so that he will at least belong to the middle group.[2]

Fourteen Meals – the Magen Avraham

The Magen Avraham (2) defines "extremely pressed": one who has food for fourteen meals – two meals every day of the week – should not take from tzedaka in order to eat a third meal on Shabbos (Shabbos 118a). The Rambam in his commentary on the Mishna writes that he should rather eat nothing on Motzei Shabbos so that he can eat the third meal on Shabbos. In any event, if he has only two meals for Shabbos he should not take tzedaka for the third.

The Mishna Berura's Approach

The Mishna Berura (1) understands the levels differently:

– One whose money only covers two meals for Shabbos is aseh shabbatcha chol – obligated neither in three seudos nor in kisa d'harsena.

– One who has enough for three meals and a little more must spend it on Shabbos.

[2] The Taz adds that this is the intent of Tanna d'Bei Eliyahu (Pesachim 112a): although Rabbi Akiva said aseh shabbatcha chol, one should still do something small, such as kisa d'harsena.

– One who already receives tzedaka must be given by the gabbaim three meals and kisa d'harsena. Aseh shabbatcha chol applies only to one who has not yet begun to take; one who already stretches out his hand is given everything.[3]

Therefore the chiddush of the Mechaber is that one who has a little of his own must honor Shabbos properly – kisa d'harsena alone is not enough. Even one who is exempt min hadin should try to be at least in the middle category, as the Taz wrote.

In the Biur Halacha (ד"ה צריך) the Mishna Berura notes that he follows the Bach, Eliyahu Rabba and Tosefos Shabbos, who require proper oneg, against the Taz, who holds kisa d'harsena suffices. Since even one with nothing receives three meals and kisa d'harsena, there would be no chiddush in the Mechaber according to the Taz. He suggests a possible defense: one might have thought that a person who lives on others' support during the week should use his own little money only on Shabbos, and if it covers only two meals, he should make his Shabbos chol rather than take tzedaka for Shabbos.[4]

Borrowing for Shabbos

The Mishna Berura (3) adds that "extremely pressed" refers to one who has no collateral to borrow against and cannot borrow without it. Otherwise, he must borrow so as not to neglect oneg Shabbos, as Chazal say: Hakadosh Baruch Hu says, "My children, borrow on My account and I will repay" (Beitza 15b).

The Magen Avraham (2), quoting the Yerushalmi, writes that one may borrow with interest for a seudas Shabbos or a seudas mitzvah. The Mishna Berura (4) qualifies this: from a non-Jew, or from a Jew in a permitted manner (such as with a heter iska).

Shabbos Expenses Are Not Allotted

On the words 4) "in order to honor Shabbos," the Mishna Berura (4) brings the Tur: a person's sustenance is fixed from Rosh Hashana to Rosh Hashana, so one should be careful not to add to his expenses lest it was not allotted to him – except for the expenses of Shabbos, Yom Tov, and his children's Torah learning. For these, if he adds, he is given more (Beitza 16a).

He also brings the Sefer Chassidim: if someone sent him food to eat on Shabbos, he should not eat it during the week.

Paying a Worker – the Biur Halacha

The Biur Halacha (ד"ה לכבד) discusses one who has only a little money, and a worker who finished his work today comes to be paid. He must pay the worker in order to fulfil ביומו תתן שכרו even though nothing will be left for oneg Shabbos, unless he can persuade the worker to wait. Paying a worker on time is mid'oraisa, while oneg is divrei kabbalah. Even according to those who hold oneg is mid'oraisa, a single asei does not override an asei together with a lo saasei.[5]

[3] He adds that places where the gabbaim give the poor only two meals are not acting properly, especially in the summer when the days are long. See Yoreh De'ah 253.

[4] The Biur Halacha also discusses the Biur HaGra here, who explains like the Taz, but notes that in siman 263 the Gra seems to hold otherwise. Since the Gra's opinion is unclear, he follows the majority of Poskim.

[5] This applies only if the worker already delivered the item and the owner accepted it. Otherwise the owner may decline to accept it and does not transgress (Shita Mekubetzes, Bava Metzia 112a). If the work was finished yesterday, only the general prohibition of bal tashhe applies, as with any creditor.

How to Honor Shabbos

Two Dishes and Fish

On the words 2) "to honor Shabbos," the Magen Avraham (1) writes that one should not have fewer than two cooked dishes (Zohar). The Tikkunei Shabbos say to eat fish at each of the three seudos. The Magen Avraham adds that each person goes according to his nature (see siman 288). The Mishna Berura (2) explains: if fish does not agree with him or he dislikes it, he need not eat it, since Shabbos was given for delight and not for distress.

When Prices Rise

The Magen Avraham (1) writes that if the sellers raise the price of fish, it is proper to enact that people not buy fish, bringing a proof from the Mishna at the end of the first perek of Kerisos.[6] The Mishna Berura (2) adds:

– The Ba'er Heitev limits this to a price increase of more than a third. The Eliyahu Rabba and Pri Megadim hold one may enact it even for less, because of the poor.

– This is not a loss of oneg, since one can delight in Shabbos with other foods.

– If such an enactment was made, one who bought fish beforehand may eat it.

Lachem and Lashem

The Magen Avraham (1) quotes the Olas Shabbos, who inferred that although Yom Tov must be divided half for Hashem and half for oneself (chetzyo lachem), on Shabbos one could devote the entire day to eating and drinking, provided he does not miss the time of tefilla. The Magen Avraham strongly rejects this. Shabbos too is called "Shabbos for Hashem." Rather, the Gemora means that although Rabbi Eliezer allows Yom Tov to be devoted entirely to Hashem, on Shabbos he agrees that "lachem" is also required.[7]

Shammai and Hillel

The Taz concludes with the Gemora (Beitza 16a): all his days Shammai HaZakein ate in honor of Shabbos. When he found a fine animal he would say, "This is for Shabbos." If he found a better one, he set the second aside and ate the first. Hillel had a different approach: Baruch Hashem yom yom, trusting that each day would provide for itself. Rashi on the pasuk זכור את יום השבת explains like Beis Shammai.

The Ramban rules like Beis Hillel. However, the Bach (the Taz's father-in-law) cites the Or Zarua that Hillel agrees that Shammai's approach is preferable. A further proof is the story in Shabbos 119a of the butcher who prided himself on acting like Shammai.

Laundering on Thursday

TAKANAS EZRA

The source is Bava Kamma 82a, among the ten enactments of Ezra. On the words 5) "because of kavod Shabbos," the Magen Avraham (3) explains: not on Erev Shabbos, so that people will be free to prepare for Shabbos. The Mishna Berura (5) combines both reasons: on Thursday so that the clothes will be clean for Shabbos, but not on Friday so that people will be free for Shabbos preparations.

The Mishna Berura adds a practical conclusion: one should be careful not to wear the same shirt for several Shabbosos, so as not to transgress the enactment of Ezra.

[6] Where Rabban Shimon ben Gamliel lowered the price of birds for korbanos by ruling leniently on the number required.

[7] The Magen Avraham suggests the Olas Shabbos was misled by a faulty text that omitted the word "nami" (also). See siman 290 and the Bais Yosef at the beginning of siman 288.

Baking Challah at Home

The Rama writes that the minhag is to knead a shiur challah at home for Shabbos and Yom Tov. Three reasons emerge:

1. Kavod Shabbos. The preparation itself is an honor to Shabbos, as the Rama writes.
2. Mitzvas challah. The Magen Avraham (4), from the Yerushalmi (Shabbos perek 2), and the Mishna Berura (6): the woman fulfils hafrashas challah, as a tikkun for Chava, who destroyed Adam HaRishon – the "challah of the world" – who was created on Erev Shabbos.
3. Kosher bread. The Magen Avraham infers from the Rama that the purpose is to eat "kosher" bread, and therefore one should eat these very loaves on Shabbos, not other bread (see siman 274).

The Darchei Moshe's Proof

The Magen Avraham (4) quotes the source the Rama brings in Darchei Moshe: the Tur (siman 602) writes that during the seven days between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur one should eat chulin b'tahara. But there are nine days! Evidently on Yom Tov one eats in tahara anyway, so only seven are mentioned. The Magen Avraham finds this difficult – if anything, it shows that Shabbos does not require it, since removing Shabbos and two days of Yom Tov leaves only six.[8]

The Magen Avraham offers his own source: the Gemora (Taanis 24b – 25a) relates that every Erev Shabbos the wife of Rabbi Chanina ben Dosa would heat her oven, even though she had nothing to bake, so that the neighbors would think she was baking bread. Evidently it was the universal practice to bake on Erev Shabbos.

Pas Yisrael on Shabbos

The Mishna Berura (6) brings the Acharonim: even those who eat a non-Jewish baker's bread during the week should take care on Shabbos and Yom Tov to eat only pas Yisrael, in honor of the day. If one has no choice – such as Jewish soldiers – he may make kiddush on non-Jewish bread.

The Biur Halacha (ד"ה והוא מכבוד) finds a hint in the pasuk והיה ביום הששי והכינו... את אשר תאפו אפו (Shemos 16:5, 23): baking should be done on Erev Shabbos to prepare for Shabbos. He laments that some women have begun abandoning the minhag and buy from the baker, which diminishes kavod Shabbos.

Pashtida – A Remembrance of the Mon

The Rama brings the custom to eat pashtida on Friday night as a remembrance of the mon, which was covered with dew above and below; so too the meat is covered between layers of dough (Mishna Berura 6).

The Biur Halacha (ד"ה זכר למן) asks: why make a remembrance of the mon specifically on Shabbos, when no mon fell on Shabbos at all? Tosefos (Pesachim) suggest that because the mon did not fall, a remembrance is made – but this is forced, and by that logic it should also be done on Yom Tov. Furthermore, the Rama said loaves are for Shabbos and Yom Tov, but pashtida only for Friday night, implying a precise distinction.

He quotes the answer of the Toras Chaim (brought in Tosefos Shabbos): the weekly Shabbos is a model of the future yom shekulo Shabbos. Many Shabbos practices mirror the future – meat and fish corresponding to the feast of the Shor HaBar and Livyasan, and kiddush on wine corresponding to the wine preserved in its grapes for the righteous. Chazal say the heaven called Shechakim is so named because there mon is ground for the righteous in the future. Therefore a remembrance of that mon is fitting on Shabbos.

[8] He answers that Rabbi Chiya, whose practice the Tur records, lived when the months were sanctified by witnesses, so Rosh Hashana was only one day.

On the Rama's words 9) "I have not seen reason to be concerned with this," the Mishna Berura (7) brings the Knesses HaGedola: in our places the custom is to eat them.

> In the Tur he brings the Gemora in Kol Kisvei: whoever keeps Shabbos according to its halacha, even if he serves idolatry like the generation of Enosh, is forgiven. One can ask: if he did not do teshuva, how does Shabbos help? And if he did teshuva, why is Shabbos needed? It appears that it speaks of one who did teshuva, but teshuva alone does not achieve forgiveness, as stated in perek Yom HaKippurim: one who transgressed sins punishable by kareis or death by beis din – teshuva suspends, and death cleanses. This teaches us that if, when he does teshuva, he keeps Shabbos according to its halacha, the teshuva helps that he be forgiven.

(א) Even one who depends on others. The Tur writes as follows: "And what Rabbi Akiva said, 'make your Shabbos like a weekday and do not become dependent on people,' refers to one who cannot afford it. But one who can afford it must honor it according to his ability. And what Rav Chiya bar Ashi said – even something small, if made in honor of Shabbos, is oneg, and Rava said, even a dish of small fish – that refers to one whose means are very tight. Many times I discussed this matter before my father the Rosh, about one like me today, who has a little of his own that is not enough for me, and I need others: am I included in 'make your Shabbos like a weekday' or not? He did not give me a clear answer. Afterwards I found in Rashi's commentary on Pirkei Avos, on the Mishna of Rabbi Yehuda ben Teima, 'be bold as a leopard,' that he wrote as follows: Right after that Mishna, 'Rabbi Akiva says, make your Shabbos...,' is taught the Mishna of ben Teima, to teach that Rabbi Akiva only said this regarding one whose means are extremely tight; but a person must push himself like a leopard and an eagle to honor Shabbosos greatly. End quote. Therefore every person must economize on the other days in order to honor Shabbos, and he should not say 'how can I diminish my livelihood,' for on the contrary, if he adds, they add to him, as was taught..."

נראה בירור דבריו דתחלה הוקשה לו על מ"ש קוד' דיש חיוב לענג שבת וקשה ממ"ש ר"ע עשה שבתך חול לכאורה פי' שהזהיר שלא יפזר אדם מעות בשביל אכילה ושתיה ע"ד שאמרו בפ' ע"פ אכול בצל ושב בצל ולא תיכול אוזין ותרנגולים לז"א דאפי' בשבת יצמצם מזונותיו בשביל שלא יהיה עני וא"כ בטל עונג שבת לזה תי' דאין הפי' כן בדברי ר"ע אלא הוא מיירי במי שא"א לו להוציא בשביל עונג שבת וא"כ כ לשאפשר לו צריך להוציא לפי עשרו וא"כ קשה מ"ש אפי' כסא דהרסנא לזה תי' היינו שהשעה דחוק' לו

It appears that the explanation of his words is as follows. At first he found it difficult: he wrote earlier that there is an obligation of oneg Shabbos, which seems to contradict Rabbi Akiva's "make your Shabbos like a weekday." That seems to mean a warning that a person should not spend money on food and drink – as they said in perek Arvei Pesachim, "eat onion and sit in the shade, and do not eat geese and chickens" – so that even on Shabbos he should limit his food so as not to become poor; and if so, oneg Shabbos would be cancelled. To this he answered that this is not the meaning of Rabbi Akiva's words. Rather, he speaks of one who cannot spend for oneg Shabbos; but one who can must spend according to his wealth. If so, there is a difficulty from "even a dish of small fish." To this he answered: that refers to one whose means are very tight.

ונסתפק רבינו הטור מה נקרא שהשעה דחוקה לו דנ"מ לדידיה שהיה לו מעט משלו והיה צריך לאחרים דהיינו מסתמא היו נותנין לו סיפוק לכל שבוע כדרך שנותנים ללומדים בקהילות קדושות וצריך שתדע דהך דר"ע דאמר עשה שבתך חול היינו שאין נותנין לו מן הצדקה בשבת כי אם על ב' סעודות כדאיתא בפרק כל כתבי (שבת דף קי"ח) וא"כ היה ספק לרבינו אם הוא בכלל זה כיון דצריך לסיפוק אחרים וזהו צדקה ממילא לא נתחייב בשבת רק בב' סעודות וגם אינו בכלל חיוב עונג כלל א"ד דהשעה דחוקה היינו שאין לו כלל משלו ומוטל הכל על הצדקה

The Tur was then in doubt what is called "one whose means are very tight," which made a difference for himself, since he had a little of his own and needed others. Presumably they gave him enough for the whole week, the way they give to students in the holy communities. You must know that Rabbi Akiva's "make your Shabbos like a weekday" means that one is given from tzedaka on Shabbos only for two meals, as stated in perek Kol Kisvei (Shabbos 118). So the Tur was in doubt whether he was included in this, since he needed the support of others, which is tzedaka – in which case he would be obligated on Shabbos only in two meals and not in oneg at all – or perhaps "his means are very tight" means one who has nothing of his own at all and depends entirely on tzedaka.

וזה נפשט לו מדברי רש"י שדרש סמוכים במשניות ואלו לא היה דברי רש"י הייתי מפ' דבן תימא לא מיירי כלל בשבת אלא מדרך מוסר על מדותיו של אדם כמ"ש רבינו בריש א"ח אלא דמדברי רש"י למד דזה קאי על שבת ומחלק דההיא דר"ע מיירי בשעה דחוקה ביותר דהיינו שאין לו משלו כלום אלא מוטל הכל על הצדקה. אבל ב"ת אמר דאדם יהא עז כנמר להשתדל שיהי' לו מעט משלו ואז אינו מוטל כו' על הצדקה ממילא היא בכלל חיוב ענג אבל א"א לומר דב"ת מיירי ממי שידו משגת דבזה לא היה צ"ל הוי עז כנמר

This was resolved for him from Rashi, who expounded the juxtaposition of the Mishnayos. Were it not for Rashi's words, I would have explained that ben Teima does not speak of Shabbos at all, but is ethical teaching about a person's character traits, as our Rabbeinu (the Tur) wrote at the beginning of Orach Chaim. But from Rashi he learned that it refers to Shabbos, and distinguished that Rabbi Akiva speaks of one whose means are extremely tight, meaning he has nothing of his own and depends entirely on tzedaka. Ben Teima, however, says that a person should be bold as a leopard to make an effort to have a little of his own; then he is not entirely dependent on tzedaka, and automatically he is included in the obligation of oneg. It is impossible to say that ben Teima speaks of one who can afford it, for then he would not need to say "be bold as a leopard."

נמצא יש ג' חלוקות אם הוא איש אמוד וראוי לו לצמצם במזונות כדי שלא יהיה עני מ"מ בשבת לא נאמרה כן ויכבד לפי יכלתו ואם הוא איש שיש לו מעט משלו וצריך לאחרים הוא בכלל חיוב ענג והיינו ההיא שאמרו אפילו בדבר מועט לכבוד שבת כגון כסא דהרסנא וכ"ש דחייב בג"ס אבל אם השעה דחוק' לו ביות' דהיינו שאין לו כלום משלו ומוטל הכל על הצדקה אז אינו בכלל חיוב ענג ואין חייב אלא בב' סעודות והיינו דר"ע עשה שבתך חול כו'.

It emerges that there are three categories. If he is a man of means, and it is proper for him to economize on food so as not to become poor, nevertheless this was not said regarding Shabbos, and he should honor it according to his ability. If he is a man who has a little of his own and needs others, he is included in the obligation of oneg, and this is what they said, "even something small in honor of Shabbos," such as a dish of small fish – and certainly he is obligated in three meals. But if his means are extremely tight, meaning he has nothing at all of his own and depends entirely on tzedaka, then he is not included in the obligation of oneg and is obligated only in two meals, and this is Rabbi Akiva's "make your Shabbos like a weekday."

וע"כ סיים הטור ע"כ צריך כל אדם לצמצם בשאר הימים כו' פי' שראוי לו להביא עצמו לידי חיוב ענג דחיובו אם יש לו מעט משלו וזה יוכל לעשות אחר שיצמצם בחול ממילא יהיה לו מעט משלו כו' כנלע"ד ברור ונכון וראיתי פי' דחוקי' בד"א והנלע"ד נכון כתבתי.

Therefore the Tur concluded, "Therefore every person must economize on the other days..." – meaning that it is proper for him to bring himself into the obligation of oneg, which applies when he has a little of his own. This he can do by economizing during the week, so that he will automatically have a little of his own. So it seems to me clear and correct. I have seen forced explanations in ד"א, and I have written what seems correct to me.

The Bais Yosef wrote that it is brought in perek Arvei Pesachim: Tanna d'Bei Eliyahu – although Rabbi Akiva said "make your Shabbos like a weekday," he makes something small. Rav Papa said: such as a dish of small fish, as we learned: Rabbi Yehuda ben Teima says, be bold as a leopard... Rashi explains "be bold": strengthen yourself in the mitzvah beyond your ability. It appears that Rashi did not have in the Gemora the words "as we learned," since in Maseches Avos Rashi learns this matter from the juxtaposition of the Mishnayos that I mentioned. But it seems to me that Rashi did have this text, "as was taught," for were it not for the juxtaposition, I would have said that Rabbi Yehuda ben Teima does not speak of Shabbos; it is through the juxtaposition that we expound it. Rashi came in Maseches Avos so that one should not ask how the Gemora knew that ben Teima speaks of Shabbos – he revealed there in Avos that we learn it from the juxtaposition. And so everything fits well, with the help of Heaven.

A short way to explain the Tur's words: there are two Gemoras that seem to contradict each other. They said one must delight in Shabbos, yet it says "make your Shabbos like a weekday," implying one need not delight at all; so we must say there is a distinction between one whose means are very tight and one whose are not. It also says that even a dish of small fish suffices. The doubt is whether there are three categories or only two, with the dish of small fish being included in "make your Shabbos...". The practical difference was for the Tur, who had a little of his own and needed others. If there are only two categories, one who has a little of his own is included in "make your Shabbos...". Or there are three categories: one who has money for his needs is included in oneg Shabbos according to his ability; one who has a little of his own is included in "even a dish of small fish"; and one who has nothing of his own is included in "make your Shabbos like a weekday." He resolved this from Rashi, who explained "be bold as a leopard" as referring to Shabbos. That cannot speak of a man who has all his needs, since he does not need encouragement, as there is no loss to his pocket, and obviously he is obligated in oneg Shabbos. It also cannot speak of a completely poor man who has not even a little, since encouragement does not help him. Certainly it speaks of one who has a little of his own, who needs encouragement to delight in Shabbos, and for him even a dish of small fish suffices. Therefore the Tur concluded "extremely pressed," to indicate the third category. And Rabbeinu concluded that one must economize... meaning that every person, even one who does not have a little, should see that he is at least in the middle group, that is, at least in oneg Shabbos, and not in the third group.

וזה כונת הגמ' תנא דבי אליהו אע"פ שאר"ע עשה שבתך חול כו' ואפילו בכסא דהרסנ' פי' אעפ"י שיש ג' חלוקות והחלוקה הג' פטור לגמרי מ"מ כיון שיש חלוקה אמצעית היוצאות אפילו בכסא דהרסנ' יראה כל אדם שיהיה בכלל אמצעית וכפי' דברי הטור:

This is the intent of the Gemora: Tanna d'Bei Eliyahu – although Rabbi Akiva said "make your Shabbos like a weekday," and even a dish of small fish. That is: although there are three categories, and the third is completely exempt, since there is a middle category that fulfils its obligation even with a dish of small fish, every person should see that he is in the middle category, as explained in the Tur.

בגמרא פ"ב דביצה אמרו על שמאי הזקן שכל ימיו היה אוכל לכבוד שבת כו' ופירש"י על פסוק זכור את יום השבת כבית שמאי והרמב"ן כתב שם דהלכה כב"ה וכתב מו"ח ז"ל מצאתי בשם א"ז דהלל מודה דכב"ש עדיף וראיה עוד ממעשה בקצב בפרק כל כתבי שהיה מתפאר שעשה כב"ש:

In the Gemora, perek 2 of Beitza, they said about Shammai HaZakein that all his days he ate in honor of Shabbos... Rashi explained the pasuk "Remember the Shabbos day" like Beis Shammai. The Ramban wrote there that the halacha is like Beis Hillel. My father-in-law (the Bach) wrote: I found in the name of the Or Zarua that Hillel agrees that Beis Shammai's way is better. There is a further proof from the story of the butcher in perek Kol Kisvei, who prided himself that he acted like Beis Shammai.

In the Tur etc. – on the Taz. In Yoma we say: for kareis and death by beis din, suffering cleanses; and he wrote "death" only by a slip, carried along by the flow of the phrase. See the Perisha, who explains that Enosh served idolatry by mistake, since he thought it proper to honor the stars, as the Rambam wrote in the laws of idolatry; therefore, if he keeps Shabbos, he is forgiven; see there. But one who served idolatry with complete intent needs suffering too.

אפי' עט"ז ותוכן דבריו שיש שלש כתות כו' ועיין פסחים קי"ב א' אפי' לר"ע עושה כסא דהרסנא היינו שיראה שיהיה לו מעט משלו אבל אם אין לו משלו כלום עושה שבתו חול ושני סעודות וכ"ש דאין נוטל מצדקה כסא דהרסנא. ועי"ד רנ"ג ט"ז הביא תוס' שבת קי"ח א' ד"ה והא דאדרבה כשנוטל הכל מצדקה נותנין לו שלש סעודות רק מי שיש לו יד"ס אין נותנין לו סעודה שלישית ועב"ח ובספר תוספת שבת הקשה כן על הט"ז וי"ל הטור לא ס"ל כתוספות והא דתנן שבת נותנין שלש סעודות כי חדא אית ליה ממה שהביא עמו אותם יוליך מכאן לדרך ושלש סעודות ב' לשבת וא' למ"ש בלילה ויאכל סמוך לערב כמ"ש המ"א באות ב' להר"מ ז"ל כן סובר הטור ג"כ אבל לדינא מסכים הט"ז בי"ד כתוספות יע"ש עמ"ש במ"א ב':

Even – on the Taz. The content of his words is that there are three groups etc. See Pesachim 112a: even according to Rabbi Akiva, he makes a dish of harsena – that is, he should see that he has a little of his own; but if he has nothing of his own, he makes his Shabbos like a weekday, two meals, and certainly he does not take a dish of harsena from tzedaka. See Yoreh De'ah 253, Taz [seif katan] 1, who brought Tosfos Shabbos 118a, ד"ה והא: on the contrary, when he takes everything from tzedaka, they give him three meals; only one who has fourteen meals is not given a third meal. See the Bach. In the Sefer Tosefos Shabbos he asked this on the Taz. One can say that the Tur does not hold like Tosfos, and what was taught, that on Shabbos they give three meals, is because he has one from what he brought with him, which he will take from here for the road; and three meals – two for Shabbos and one for Motzei Shabbos at night, and he eats close to evening, as the Magen Avraham wrote in os 2 according to the Rambam. So too holds the Tur. But l'halacha the Taz in Yoreh De'ah agrees with Tosfos; see there, and see what is written on Magen Avraham 2.

Now there is something like a proof that it retracted completely from what it said at first, and even according to the Rabbanan he eats one meal on Motzei Shabbos, not close to evening: since in Shabbos 118 it asks first from the end of the Mishna and afterwards from the beginning, "on Shabbos they give three meals." For one can say that according to Rabbi Chidka, since the three "today"s are explicit in the pesukim, and Chazal relied on the three meals being hinted in the pasuk, it is a mere asmachta; but a fourth meal is not hinted so much in the pasuk, only that by reasoning he holds "besides the evening." Therefore on Shabbos they give three meals, and a fourth he does not take, like Rabbi Akiva's "make your Shabbos...". But now it asks from the end, fourteen meals: we see he takes only two meals, like Rabbi Akiva, and necessarily like the distinction of Tosfos – if he takes from tzedaka, he is given all his needs. If so, it is difficult for Rabbi Chidka. What is the question? Fourteen meals – he eats that of Motzei Shabbos close to evening, according to the Rash, and in truth the three that are well hinted in the pasuk he takes, but not a fourth. This shows that it retracted from this completely. Know that if it retracted completely, certainly the halacha is like Rabbi Akiva; and if we say it did not retract, according to the Rabbanan there is no proof that the halacha is like Rabbi Akiva, since one can say the Chachamim disagree with him. One need not elaborate on this here. The incident of the butcher, Shabbos 119a; see there in the Gemora. See what is written in the General Introduction regarding asmachta.

This requires study; understand this. See what is written in siman 168:7 regarding kisnin.

לכבד את השבת

To honor Shabbos

MAGEN AVRAHAM 1

לכבד השבת. ולא יפחות משני תבשילין (זוהר בראשי' עמוד ק"ל) ובתיקוני שבת שיאכל בכל סעודה מג' סעודות דגים ע"ש ונ"ל דכל א' לפי טבעו כמ"ש סי' רפ"ח ס"ד, אם הערלים מיקרין השער דגים נכון לתקן שלא יקנו דגים וראיה ממשנה ספ"א דכריתות (צ"צ),

To honor Shabbos. One should not have fewer than two cooked dishes (Zohar, Bereishis, p. 130). In the Tikkunei Shabbos: he should eat fish at each of the three meals; see there. It seems to me that each person goes according to his nature, as written in siman 288:4. If the non-Jews raise the price of fish, it is proper to enact that people not buy fish, and a proof is from the Mishna at the end of the first perek of Kerisos (צ"צ).

כתוב בס' עולת שבת משמע מסוגיא דפסחים אף על גב דבי"ט בעינן חצי לה' אבל בשבת אם רוצה לעשות הכל לכם עושה ובלבד שלא יבטל זמן התפלה ע"כ

It is written in the Sefer Olas Shabbos: it is implied from the sugya in Pesachim that although on Yom Tov we require half for Hashem, on Shabbos, if he wishes to make all of it "for you," he may, as long as he does not neglect the time of tefilla. End quote.

ואני אומר נשתקע הדבר ולא נאמר דהא כתיב ג"כ שבת לה' אלקיך אלא ה"ק אף על פי דר"א פליג בי"ט ואמר או כולו לה' וכו' אבל בשבת בעי' נמי לכם כ"ה בטור ובגמ' והוא לא העתיק תיבת נמי ואפש' שנוסחא מוטע' אטעיתי' עסי' ר"ץ וב"י ר"ס רפ"ח:

And I say: let the matter be forgotten and not said, for it is also written "a Shabbos to Hashem your G-d." Rather, this is the meaning: although Rabbi Eliezer disagrees regarding Yom Tov and says it is either all for Hashem etc., on Shabbos we also require "for you." So it is in the Tur and the Gemora, and he did not copy the word "also" (nami). Perhaps a mistaken text misled him. See siman 290 and the Bais Yosef at the beginning of siman 288.

PRI MEGADIM (ESHEL AVRAHAM) 1 on Magen Avraham 1 פרי מגדים – אשל אברהם (א)

To honor – on the Magen Avraham. What is called a "cooked dish" – see siman 527 (סד"ה); see there. And siman 288:2: if eating harms him, etc. In the Tzemach Tzedek, siman 21, from Kerisos perek 1 (Mishna 7), from Rabban Shimon ben Gamliel, who taught that five certain births bring one korban and the rest is not an obligation, etc.; see there.

(יש לי הרהורי דברים בתשובה זו א' התם עשו תקנה בשאו"ת שלא יבואו לקום ועשה יאכלו בטומאה משא"כ כאן לעשות תקנה בשוא"ת לבטל חודש א' פן יבטלו הרבה בשוא"ת. ב' התם יש תקנה להכריז אח"כ לכשיחזור השער למקומו שיבאו השאר משא"כ כאן גם מ"ש בהג"ה יש כח ב"ד בשוא"ת היינו ב"ד הגדול או רוב חכמי ישראל משא"כ ב"ד בעיר א' לא עיין בהרע"ב שלימ"ד לפי שעה שלא כהלכה כמ"ש כאן. והא דלימד שלא כהלכה מן התור"ה קאמר דדרשא גמורה היא זאת תורת להביא קרבן על כ"א וערש"י כריתות שם בספק בקושי התירו ל"ד דהלמ"מ הוא והלכתא כך הוה ועוד דאל"כ איך מביא חולין לעזרה ומיהו י"ל יש כח ביד ב"ד בקום ועשה כה"ג דבריהם ד"ת מלא תסור ואשר יורוך והיכא דאתנו הקילו כמבואר כ"פ ובשורש הח' וכאן התנו שיהא ממש דין תורה והדברים ארוכים אין עת האסף פה)

(I have some reservations about this teshuva. First, there they made an enactment through passive inaction, so that people would not come to actively eat in impurity; but here it is to make an enactment through passivity to cancel one month, lest they cancel much through passivity. Second, there there was an enactment to announce afterwards, when the price returned to its place, that the rest should be brought; but here not. Also, what is written in the gloss – that beis din has power through passive inaction – means the great beis din or most of the Chachamim of Israel, not a beis din in one city. See the Bartenura, who wrote that he taught temporarily not according to halacha, as written here. "He taught not according to halacha" refers to the Torah, since it is a complete exposition, "this is the law of...," to bring a korban for each one; and see Rashi in Kerisos there, that regarding a doubt, they permitted with difficulty. It is not exactly so, since it is a halacha to Moshe from Sinai, and the halacha was this way. Further, otherwise how could he bring chulin into the Azara? However, one can say that beis din has power even through active doing in such a case, since their words are Torah, from "do not turn aside" and "according to what they teach you," and where they stipulated they were lenient, as explained several times, and in the eighth principle. Here they stipulated that it should be actual Torah law. The matter is long, and this is not the time to gather it.)

והנה בדגים ודאי הדין עמו דלאו ד"ת הוה ואף לא דרבנן מאחר דיש לענג במאכלים אחרים. ובהג"ה בסמוך כתבנו מזה:

Regarding fish, he is certainly right, since it is not Torah law, and not even rabbinic, since one can delight with other foods. In the gloss nearby we wrote about this.

באי"ד א' אף פחות משלי"ש יוקר יש לעשות תקנה משום עניים. שם דאם תקנו לאסור לאכול דגים כמה שבתות וא' קנה מקודם מותר יע"ש. ועוד סימן א' ב' בקהל יעשו תקנה בשוחט כו' כתב"ש ופריי שם וחולין פ"ק באיברי בשר נחירה שהכניסו לאי"י ואין להאריך:

In the middle of the words: even for an increase of less than a third, one should make an enactment because of the poor. There: if they enacted a prohibition to eat fish for several Shabbosos and one bought beforehand, it is permitted; see there. Further, siman 1:2: in a community they may make an enactment regarding a shochet etc., as the Tevu'os Shor wrote, and my Pri Megadim there, and Chullin perek 1 regarding limbs of meat from a nevelah slaughtered by stabbing that they brought into Eretz Yisrael; and one need not elaborate.

כתוב בספר עולת שבת כו' עמ"א פסחים ס"ח ב' ביצה ט"ו ב' ר"א אמר י"ט או כולו לה' או כולו לכם ר"י אומר חלקה"ו חצי"ו לה' וחציו לכם אמר רבא ה"מ בשבת דבעינן נמי לכם. הנה חלקהו חציו יראה ל"ד בצימצום רק מקצת לה' ומקצת לכם ומ"ע לאכול ורשות בידו רובו לה' או רובו לכם או חצי ממש ור"א סובר מותר להתענות בי"ט (כ"מ שם דאכילה רשות היא או כולו לה' ממש ולהתענות או כולו כלומר רובו לכם דהא צריך לתפלה ועכ"פ ק"ש ד"ת ואמר רבא כו' דבעינן נמי לכם קצת ואסור להתענות

It is written in the Sefer Olas Shabbos etc. – On the Magen Avraham: Pesachim 68b and Beitza 15b. Rabbi Eliezer said: Yom Tov is either all for Hashem or all for you. Rabbi Yehoshua says: divide it – half for Hashem and half for you. Rava said: all agree regarding Shabbos that we also require "for you." Now, "divide it, half..." seems not to mean exactly, but some for Hashem and some for you; and it is a positive mitzvah to eat, and he has the choice of most for Hashem, or most for you, or exactly half. Rabbi Eliezer holds that one may fast on Yom Tov (as is implied there, that eating is optional): either all for Hashem, actually fasting, or all – meaning most – for you, since one needs tefilla, and at least Shema is from the Torah. Rava said etc.: we also require some "for you," and it is forbidden to fast.

וקשה הא הלכה כר"י לגבי ר"א וכמ"ש בתקנ"ט א"כ מה השמיענו רבא ולזה תי' הע"ש דל"ג נמ"י (עיין פרישה ג"כ הגירסא) ואמר רבא ה"מ ר"י בשבת דבעינן לכם רובו והמ"א הקשה דזה לא יתכן ל"מ לגירסא נמי ואף למאן דלא גרס נמי הפירוש ה"מ ר"א אף דאין הלכה כמותו וכ"ה בטור דה"מ ר"א.

This is difficult: the halacha is like Rabbi Yehoshua against Rabbi Eliezer, as written in siman 529 (printed: 559) – if so, what did Rava teach us? To this the Olas Shabbos answered that the text does not read "also" (see the Perisha, the same text): "Rava said, all agree that Rabbi Yehoshua regarding Shabbos requires mostly 'for you'." The Magen Avraham asked that this cannot be, not only according to the text "also"; even according to one who does not have "also," the explanation is "all agree – Rabbi Eliezer," even though the halacha is not like him. So it is in the Tur, "all agree – Rabbi Eliezer."

ובר"ן ת"ח עונג להם אכילה בשבת מתענגים בהם יותר ולשאר עמא עונג ת"ת אבל אין חיוב דוקא רובו לכם: ועיין ר"מ פרק ששי מהלכות י"ט הלכה י"ו כשם שמצוה לענג בשבת כך ביו"ט ובהלכה י"ט משמע דשוין המה. ועא"ר אות וי"ו יע"ש:

In the Ran: for Torah scholars, eating on Shabbos is a delight for them, and they delight in it more; and for the rest of the people, the delight is Torah study. But there is no obligation specifically of most "for you." See the Rambam, perek 6 of the laws of Yom Tov, halacha 16: just as it is a mitzvah to delight in Shabbos, so on Yom Tov; and in halacha 19 it is implied that they are equal. See the Eliyahu Rabba, os 6; see there.

למי שהשעה דחוקה לו ביותר

Whose means are very tight

שהשעה דחוקה. היינו מי שיש לו מזון י"ד סעודות לאכול כל ימו' השבוע בכל יום ב' סעודו' לא יטול מן הצדקה לאכול סעודה ג' והכי אמרי' בפ' כל כתבי ע"כ, וכ"כ ב"ש ע"ש וברמב"ם בפי' המשנ' כתב דלא יאכל במ"ש כלום ויאכל סעודה ג' בשבת והיינו כדמשני בגמ' מעיקרא וס"ל דלא מוקמינן ליה בגמ' כר"ע אלא לר' חידקא ע"ש ומ"מ אם אין לו אלא ב' סעודו' לא יטול מן הצדקה לאכול סעודה ג' וכ"כ ב"ש עמ"ש סי' רע"ג ס"ב לוין ברבית לצורך סעודת שבת או סעודת מצוה (ש"ל ירושלמי):

Whose means are very tight. That is, one who has food for fourteen meals, to eat two meals each day all the days of the week, should not take from tzedaka to eat a third meal. So we say in perek Kol Kisvei. So too wrote the ב"ש; see there. The Rambam in his commentary on the Mishna writes that he should not eat anything on Motzei Shabbos and should eat the third meal on Shabbos. This follows the Gemora's initial answer, and he holds that the Gemora does not establish it according to Rabbi Akiva but according to Rabbi Chidka; see there. In any case, if he has only two meals, he should not take from tzedaka to eat a third meal, and so wrote the ב"ש. See what is written in siman 273:2. One may borrow with interest for the needs of a Shabbos meal or a seudas mitzvah (ש"ל, Yerushalmi).

שהשעה עמ"א בשבת פרק כ"כ ק"ח א' ועב"ח ומרש"י שם ור"ש פ"ח דפיאה מ"ז משמע במסקנא מוקי ההיא דפיאה כר"ע ומי שיש לו מזון י"ד סעודות יאכל א' ביום ובלילה לימי השבוע ולא יאכל סעודה ג' בשבת אבל הר"מ בפירוש המשנה פיאה פירש דלרבנן אוכל סעודה ב' סמוך לערב במ"ש ודי לו ומוציא הכל ולר' חדקא צריך לומר כר"ע אבל לרבנן דקי"ל כוותייהו אוכל סמוך לערב כו'. ומחולקין בזה אבל אם אין לו רק מזון ב' סעודות לשבת מודה הר"מ לדינא דלא יטול מצדקה בע"ש ועושה שבתו חול כר"ע. ואין אוכל סעודה שלישית.

Whose means – on the Magen Avraham. In Shabbos, perek Kol Kisvei, 118a, and see the Bach. From Rashi there and the Rash on Peah perek 8, Mishna 7, it is implied that in the conclusion it establishes that Mishna in Peah according to Rabbi Akiva: one who has food for fourteen meals should eat one by day and one at night for the days of the week, and should not eat a third meal on Shabbos. But the Rambam in his commentary on the Mishna (Peah) explained that according to the Rabbanan, he eats the second meal close to evening on Motzei Shabbos, which is enough for him, and he spends everything; and according to Rabbi Chidka one must say it follows Rabbi Akiva, but according to the Rabbanan, whom we follow, he eats close to evening etc. They differ in this. But if he has only food for two meals for Shabbos, the Rambam agrees l'halacha that he should not take from tzedaka on Erev Shabbos, and makes his Shabbos like a weekday like Rabbi Akiva, and does not eat a third meal.

ומ"ש רע"ג ט"ס ואפשר רצ"א שם כתב מענין זה אם אין לו כדי לחלקם ועט"ז י"ד רנ"ג ב' הקשה על הפרישה ולמ"ש המ"א כאן הם דברי הר"מ ז"ל דלמסקנא לרבנן כדמשני מעיקרא. ועיין ר"ש פיאה כתב מזון שלש סעודות מוקי כר"ח מג' סעודות מקשה כן אבל ב' סעודות לא מקשה כלום וכ"ת דקשה איך סתם ב' סעודות הא בשבת כו' א"כ לא מתרץ כלום ואין להאריך:

What is written "273" is a printing error; perhaps it is 291, where he wrote on this subject – if he does not have enough to divide them. See the Taz, Yoreh De'ah 253:2, who asked on the Perisha. According to what the Magen Avraham wrote here, these are the words of the Rambam, that in the conclusion, according to the Rabbanan, it is as the Gemora answered at first. See the Rash on Peah, who wrote that "food for three meals" is established according to Rabbi Chidka, since from three meals he asks so; but from two meals he asks nothing. And if you say it is difficult how it said two meals without specification when on Shabbos etc. – if so, it answers nothing; one need not elaborate.

גם מה פריך י"ד סעודות חמסרי הויין הא יש לחלקה ודי לסעודה שלישית כזית או כביצה למ"ד קודם חצות יוצא ידי סעודה שלישית וא"ה ברצ"א יבואר עוד בזה וכאן אין להאריך:

Also, what does it ask, "fourteen meals – they are fifteen"? One can divide them, and for the third meal an olive's size or an egg's size is enough, according to the one who holds that before midday one fulfils the third meal. With Hashem's help, in siman 291 this will be explained further, and here one need not elaborate.

לוין בריבית כו' בהיתר וא"ל ידחה עשה דאכילת שבת ללאו כו' חדא בעידנא כו' ועוד דהמלוה עובר. ומ"ש ב' סעודות מיירי ביודע שבליל מ"ש יתנו לו סעודה אף שאין נחלקת בלילה וע' בס' חמד משה יע"ש:

One may borrow with interest etc. – in a permitted manner. One cannot say that the positive mitzvah of eating on Shabbos overrides the prohibition etc., since they are not at the same time etc.; and further, the lender transgresses. What is written "two meals" refers to where he knows that on Motzei Shabbos at night they will give him a meal, even though it is not distributed at night. See the Sefer Chemed Moshe; see there.

For the honor – on the Magen Avraham. That is, it is not to be read "for the honor of Shabbos," that they should be white for Shabbos. The Mechaber wrote "because of kavod Shabbos" to give a reason specifically for Thursday and not Friday, so that they will be free. But the Shabbos meal – it is better to buy it on Erev Shabbos. See the Elya Zuta, os 5, and the Eliyahu Rabba, os 9, on this.

כדי שיעור חלה בבית

To make loaves from them

MAGEN AVRAHAM 4

לעשות מהם לחמים. ומביא בד"מ סמך לזה מדכ' הטור סי' תר"ב שיאכל חולין בטהרה בז' ימים שבין ר"ה לי"כ וקשה הלא ט' הם אע"כ בי"ט בלא"ה אוכל בטהרה וצ"ע דאדרבא משם מוכח דבשבת א"צ לזהר דאל"כ ישארו רק ו' כשתסיר שבת וב' י"ט של ר"ה, וי"ל דר' חייא היה מקדש ע"פ הראיה כדאיתא במס' ר"ה וא"כ היה רק יום א' י"ט

To make loaves from them. The Darchei Moshe brings a support for this from what the Tur writes in siman 602, that one should eat chulin in purity during the seven days between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur. This is difficult – there are nine! Rather, on Yom Tov one eats in purity in any case. But this requires study, for on the contrary, it is proven from there that on Shabbos one need not be careful, for otherwise only six would remain when you remove Shabbos and the two days of Yom Tov of Rosh Hashana. One can answer that Rabbi Chiya sanctified the month based on sighting, as brought in Maseches Rosh Hashana, and if so there was only one day of Yom Tov.

ולי נראה ראיה לזה מתענית דף כ"ה דביתהו דרב חנינא כל ע"ש היתה מסקת התנור שיהיו סבורים שאפת' פת ומ"מ מוכח מדברי רמ"א שהטעם לאכול פת כשר וא"כ צריך לאכול החלות בשבת ולא פת אחר ועמ"ש סימן רע"ד וגם כדי לקיים מצות חלה לפי שאבדה חלתו של עולם כדאי' בירושלמי דשב' בפ"ב (ל"ב):

To me there appears a proof for this from Taanis daf 25: the wife of Rabbi Chanina would heat the oven every Erev Shabbos so that people would think she baked bread. In any case, it is proven from the words of the Rama that the reason is to eat kosher bread, and if so one must eat the challos on Shabbos and not other bread; see what is written in siman 274. It is also in order to fulfil the mitzvah of challah, since she destroyed the "challah of the world," as brought in the Yerushalmi, Shabbos perek 2 (32).

PRI MEGADIM (ESHEL AVRAHAM) 4 on Magen Avraham 4 פרי מגדים – אשל אברהם (ד)

To make – on the Magen Avraham. In the Darchei Moshe he wrote here, referring to siman 602, and there he explained what Rabbi Chiya commanded Rav: "For seven days a year, eat (in purity)" – that is, the seven weekdays between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur, since on Rosh Hashana one is obligated to purify himself. According to this, the seven weekdays include Shabbos. Even though the time of Torah scholars' marital relations is on Shabbos, he will eat with fruit juices; see the Magen Avraham at the beginning of siman 280 (implying that the time of Torah scholars is Shabbos, not Yom Tov; see siman 240 and Even HaEzer 76).

ובד"מ פירש דבי"ט לשין בבתיהם והקשה כן א"כ בשבת אין לשין דאל"כ ליכא כ"א ששה ימים דבזיי"ן יום א' שבת והמ"א תי' דרבי חייא הוה מקדש עפ"י ראייה ונשארו ח' ימים ויום א' שבת נשארו ז' ימי החו"ל ממש ואדרבה מוכח מטור דבשבת אופין בבתיהם ולא בי"ט ומש"ה בר"ה הוצרך לטעם חייב למהר ואם יאכל פת שמא יטמא הגוף מדבריהם ובשבת בבתיהם מסתמא בטהרה וזיי"ן ימי החול הוצרך והיינו מקדש עפ"י הראייה ועיין ס' ח"מ ולמ"ש א"ש:

In the Darchei Moshe he explained that on Yom Tov they kneaded in their houses, and the Magen Avraham asked so: if so, on Shabbos they do not knead, for otherwise there would be only six days, since in seven days one day is Shabbos. The Magen Avraham answered that Rabbi Chiya sanctified the month based on sighting, so eight days remained, and one day is Shabbos, leaving seven actual weekdays. On the contrary, it is proven from the Tur that on Shabbos they baked in their houses, but not on Yom Tov, and therefore on Rosh Hashana he needed the reason that one is obligated to purify, and if he eats bread, perhaps the body will become impure according to their words. On Shabbos, in their houses, presumably in purity. The seven weekdays he needed, and that is that he sanctified based on sighting. See the Sefer Chemed Moshe, and according to what I wrote it fits well.

בד"מ תר"ב צ"ע במ"ש משכמת ואופה בע"ש בב"ק פ"ב משמע גם בחול כל שצריכה לאפות שתהיה בשחרית שתהא מצוי לעני וע' ר"מ פכ"א מה"א ח"ה ולד"מ דגרס בע"ש א"כ משכמ"ת משום כבוד שבת שתהא פנוי' אח"כ ובגמרא אמר שיהא מצוי פת לעני. גם מ"ש אע"פ שאין ראיה דבלא"ה היתה אופה מ"מ רואין דאית בי' כבוד שבת מדנקטו ע"ש צ"ע דמשכמת בע"ש דוקא.

In the Darchei Moshe, siman 602, it requires study regarding what is written, "she rises early and bakes on Erev Shabbos." In Bava Kamma perek 2 it is implied that also during the week, whenever she must bake, it should be in the morning, so that it will be available for the poor; see the Rambam (פכ"א מה"א ח"ה). According to the Darchei Moshe, who reads "on Erev Shabbos," she rises early because of kavod Shabbos, so that she will be free afterwards; but in the Gemora it says so that bread will be available for the poor. Also what is written, "even though there is no proof, since she baked anyway, nevertheless we see that there is kavod Shabbos in it, since they mentioned Erev Shabbos," requires study, since she rises early specifically on Erev Shabbos.

וי"ל חדא מתורצת בחבירתה דגרס בע"ש ובגמ' אמרו הטעם דשייך אף בחול כפירש"י לשם ולמה נקטו ע"ש ש"מ דרכם היה בע"ש לכבוד שבת ומכינה גם לימות החול או נקט המצוי ש"מ דאות כבוד השבת בזה. וא"כ הר"ב כאן תרתי קאמר א' כבוד שבת שנית שיהא בטהרה ועתה שאין לנו טהרה מ"מ פת ישראל כו': וא"ה בסוף הסי' יבואר לענין שומן בלחם שבת יע"ש:

One can say that one is answered by the other: he reads "on Erev Shabbos," and in the Gemora they gave a reason that applies even during the week, as Rashi explained there. Why did they mention Erev Shabbos? This shows that their way was on Erev Shabbos for kavod Shabbos, and she prepared also for the weekdays; or he mentioned the common case, which shows that there is a sign of kavod Shabbos in this. If so, the Rama here says two things: first, kavod Shabbos; second, that it be in purity. Now that we have no purity, nevertheless Jewish bread etc. With Hashem's help, at the end of the siman it will be explained regarding fat in Shabbos bread; see there.

MISHNA BERURA ON THIS SEIF

MISHNA BERURA 1 משנה ברורה (א)

אפילו וכו' – הנה עיקר מצות עונג שבת נתפרש לנו על ידי הנביאים וכמו שנאמר וקראת לשבת עונג ויש פוסקים שס"ל דעיקרו הוא מן התורה שהשבת הוא בכלל מקראי קודש שנאמר וביום השביעי שבת שבתון מקרא קודש וגו' ומקרא קודש פירשו חז"ל בספרא דהיינו לקדשו ולכבדו בכסות נקיה ולענגו בעונג אכילה ושתיה והפליגו חז"ל [בשבת קי"ח] מאד במצוה זו ואמרו דכל המענג את השבת נותנין לו נחלה בלי מצרים וניצול משעבוד מלכיות וזוכה עבור זה לעשירות ועי"ש עוד כמה מאמרים בענין זה.

Even etc. – The main mitzvah of oneg Shabbos was explained to us through the Neviim, as it says, "and you shall call Shabbos a delight." Some Poskim hold that its essence is from the Torah, since Shabbos is included in the mikra'ei kodesh, as it says, "and on the seventh day is a Shabbos of rest, a holy convocation..." Chazal explained "holy convocation" in the Sifra as sanctifying it and honoring it with clean clothing and delighting in it with the pleasure of eating and drinking. Chazal (Shabbos 118) spoke very greatly of this mitzvah, and said that whoever delights in Shabbos is given a boundless inheritance, is saved from the subjugation of the nations, and merits wealth because of it; see there several more statements on this subject.

והנה בגדר מצוה זו יש ג' מאמרי חז"ל בזה א) הא דאמרו דצריך לענגו בדגים גדולים וראשי שומן ותבשיל של תרדין שזה היה מאכל חשוב בזמניהם וכן בכל מקום ומקום לפי מנהגו יענגוהו במאכלים ומשקים החשובים להם עונג [ולפי שמן הסתם רוב בני אדם עיקר ענוגם בבשר ויין ומגדנות לכך איתא בסימן ר"נ ס"ב דירבה בבשר ויין ומגדנות כפי יכלתו]. ב) הא דאמרו דאפילו דבר מועט שעשאו לכבוד שבת קיים מצות עונג שבת ואפי' כסא דהרסנא (היינו דגים קטנים מטוגנין בשמן) ג) הא דאמר ר"ע עשה שבתך חול ואל תצטרך לבריות

Regarding the definition of this mitzvah, there are three statements of Chazal. (a) They said one must delight in it with large fish, choice cuts and a dish of beets, which was an important food in their times. So too in every place, according to its custom, they should delight in it with the foods and drinks that are important pleasures to them. [Since most people's main pleasure is meat, wine and delicacies, it says in siman 250:2 that he should have plenty of meat, wine and delicacies according to his ability.] (b) They said that even something small, if made in honor of Shabbos, fulfils the mitzvah of oneg Shabbos, even a dish of harsena (small fish fried in their oil). (c) Rabbi Akiva said, "make your Shabbos like a weekday and do not become dependent on people."

וחילוק כל אלו המאמרים הוא באופן זה דהיינו למאן דאפשר ליה צריך לכבדו כפי יכלתו ומי שהשעה דחוקה לו ביותר היינו שאין לו רק מזון ב' סעודות לשבת בזה אמר ר"ע עשה שבתך חול ואל תצטרך לבריות ואינו מחויב לא בג' סעודות ולא בכסא דהרסנא ומי שיש לו ממון כדי לקנות מזה מזון ג' סעודות ויותר מזה קצת מחויב להוציא אותן על שבת כדי שיקיים ג' סעודות וכסא דהרסנא וה"ה מי שאין לו כלום והוא מוטל הכל על הצדקה הרי הגבאים מחויבים ליתן לו ג' סעודות וכסא דהרסנא עכ"פ ובאדם נכבד הכל לפי כבודו וכמו שנתבאר ביו"ד בסי' רנ"ג. ולא אמרינן בזה עשה שבתך חול ואל תצטרך לבריות דלא אמרינן הכי אלא במי שעדיין לא נצטרך ליטול אבל מי שכבר בא לידי מדה זו לפשוט ידו וליטול נותנים לו הכל כנ"ל [ובמקומות שנוהגין הגבאים לקבוע לעניים רק שתי סעודות ולא הסעודה ג' לאו שפיר עבדי ועכ"פ בימות הקיץ בודאי יזהרו בזה]

The distinction between all these statements is as follows. One who can afford it must honor it according to his ability. One whose means are extremely tight, meaning he has only food for two meals for Shabbos – about him Rabbi Akiva said "make your Shabbos like a weekday and do not become dependent on people," and he is obligated neither in three meals nor in a dish of harsena. One who has money to buy food for three meals and a little more is obligated to spend it on Shabbos, so that he will fulfil three meals and a dish of harsena. Similarly, one who has nothing and depends entirely on tzedaka – the gabbaim are obligated to give him at least three meals and a dish of harsena, and to an honorable person, all according to his honor, as explained in Yoreh De'ah siman 253. We do not say "make your Shabbos like a weekday" about him, since that is said only to one who has not yet needed to take; but one who has already come to the point of stretching out his hand and taking is given everything, as above. [In places where the gabbaim give the poor only two meals and not the third, they are not acting properly, and at least in the summer they should certainly be careful about this.]

ולזה בא השו"ע לומר דאם יש לו גם מעט משלו צריך לדחוק עצמו לכבד ולענג שבת כראוי כיון דאפשר לו ויש בידו להוציא ע"ז ולא סגי בכסא דהרסנא לחוד ולזה סיים דיצמצם בשאר ימים מהוצאותיו כדי שיהא נשאר לו זה לכבוד שבת. ועיין בט"ז ותוספות שבת ושארי אחרונים שכתבו דאף מי שהשעה דחוקה לו ביותר דהוא פטור מדינא מסעודה ג' וכסא דהרסנא מ"מ נכון מאד שיראה להשתדל להיות עכ"פ מן הכת האמצעית דהיינו בקיום ג' סעודות וכסא דהרסנא:

The Shulchan Aruch comes to say that if he has even a little of his own, he must push himself to honor and delight in Shabbos properly, since he can afford it and has the means to spend on it, and a dish of harsena alone is not enough. Therefore it concludes that he should economize on his expenses on the other days, so that this will remain for kavod Shabbos. See the Taz, Tosefos Shabbos and other Acharonim, who wrote that even one whose means are extremely tight, who is exempt min hadin from the third meal and the dish of harsena, should nevertheless make a great effort to be at least in the middle category, that is, fulfilling three meals and a dish of harsena.

לכבד את השבת – וטוב ליזהר שלא יפחות משני תבשילין גם טוב שיאכל בכל סעודה מג' סעודות דגים אם לא שאין נאותים לו לפי טבעו או ששונאן ושבת לעונג ניתן ולא לצער וכדלקמן בסי' רפ"ח

To honor Shabbos – It is good to be careful not to have fewer than two cooked dishes. It is also good to eat fish at each of the three meals, unless they do not suit him according to his nature or he dislikes them, for Shabbos was given for delight and not for distress, as below in siman 288.

אם מוכרי הדגים מייקרין השער נכון לתקן שלא יקנו דגים איזה שבתות עד שיעמוד השער על מקומו והנה בבה"ט הביא דלא יעשו תקנה רק אם הוסיפו המקח יתר על שליש מכמו שהיה מקדם אבל בא"ר ובפמ"ג כתבו דאף פחות משליש יוקר יש לעשות תקנה משום עניים. עוד כתב שם דאין בזה משום בטול מצות עונג דיש לענג השבת במאכלים אחרים. אם תקנו לאסור לאכול דגים כמה שבתות ואחד קנה מקודם מותר:

> If the fish sellers raise the price, it is proper to enact that people not buy fish for some Shabbosos until the price returns to its place. The Ba'er Heitev brings that they should make such an enactment only if they raised the price by more than a third of what it was before, but the Eliyahu Rabba and Pri Megadim wrote that even for less than a third one should make an enactment, because of the poor. He also wrote there that this is not a cancellation of the mitzvah of oneg Shabbos, since one can delight in Shabbos with other foods. If they enacted a prohibition to eat fish for several Shabbosos, and one bought them beforehand, it is permitted.

למי שהשעה וכו' – ומיירי כשאין לו משכונות ללות עליהם ובלא משכון אין יכול להשיג דאל"ה צריך ללות כדי שלא לבטל מצות עונג שבת וכמו שאחז"ל שאומר הקב"ה בני לוו עלי ואני פורע:

> To one whose means etc. – This refers to one who has no collateral to borrow against, and without collateral he cannot obtain a loan. Otherwise, he must borrow so as not to neglect the mitzvah of oneg Shabbos, as Chazal said that Hakadosh Baruch Hu says, "My children, borrow on My account and I will repay."

כדי לכבד השבת – דבמזונות של שבת ויו"ט אם מוסיף מוסיפין לו וכמו שאחז"ל כל מזונותיו של אדם קצובין לו מר"ה ועד ר"ה ויש ליזהר שלא יוסיף בהן פן לא קצבו לו כ"כ חוץ מהוצאות שבת ויו"ט והוצאות בניו לת"ת שאם מוסיף מוסיפין לו [טור]

> In order to honor Shabbos – For in the food of Shabbos and Yom Tov, if he adds, they add to him, as Chazal said: all of a person's food is allotted to him from Rosh Hashana to Rosh Hashana, and one should be careful not to add to it, lest it was not allotted to him so much – except for the expenses of Shabbos and Yom Tov and the expenses of his children's Torah learning, for if he adds, they add to him [Tur].

לוין ברבית לצורך סעודת שבת או סעודת מצוה והיינו מא"י או מישראל בדרך היתר. אם שלחו לו דבר מאכל שיאכלנו בשבת לא יאכלנו בחול כ"כ בס"ח ועיין לקמן בסימן תרצ"ד ס"ב דדעת הש"ע שם דהעני יכול לשנות במגבת פורים למה שירצה אף דגבוהו לצורך פורים אכן גם שם יש מחמירין בזה עיין בטור שם:

> One may borrow with interest for the needs of a Shabbos meal or a seudas mitzvah – that is, from a non-Jew, or from a Jew in a permitted manner. If someone sent him food to eat on Shabbos, he should not eat it during the week; so wrote the Sefer Chassidim. See below in siman 694:2 that the opinion of the Shulchan Aruch there is that a poor person may change the use of the Purim collection to whatever he wishes, even though it was collected for Purim; but there too some are stringent about this; see the Tur there.

מפני וכו' – היינו כדי שיהיו לבנים לשבת אבל לא בע"ש כדי שיהיו פנוים להתעסק בצרכי שבת ולפ"ז צריך ליזהר שלא לילך בחלוק אחד כמה שבתות כדי שלא לעבור על תקנות עזרא:

> Because etc. – That is, so that they will be white for Shabbos; but not on Erev Shabbos, so that they will be free to busy themselves with the needs of Shabbos. According to this, one must be careful not to wear one shirt for several Shabbosos, so as not to transgress the enactments of Ezra.

כדי שיעור חלה – היינו מלבד שהלישה והאפיה הוא מכלל כבוד שבת ויו"ט כמו שמסיים לבסוף עוד יש בזה טעם כדי לקיים מצות חלה לפי שאיבדה את אדה"ר שהיה חלתו של עולם שנברא בע"ש

> A shiur challah – That is, besides the fact that the kneading and baking are part of kavod Shabbos and Yom Tov, as he concludes at the end, there is another reason: to fulfil the mitzvah of challah, since she (Chava) destroyed Adam HaRishon, who was the "challah of the world," who was created on Erev Shabbos.

ועיין באחרונים דאפילו הנוהגין לאכול פת פלטר של א"י בחול מ"מ בשבת ויו"ט נכון ליזהר שלא לאכול כ"א מפת ישראל מפני כבוד השבת ויו"ט. ופשוט דאם הוא אנוס שאין לו על מה לקדש כ"א על פת של אינם יהודים כמו שמצוי לאנשי חיל העברים יכול לקדש עליו:

See the Acharonim, that even those who are accustomed to eat a non-Jewish baker's bread during the week should be careful on Shabbos and Yom Tov to eat only Jewish bread, because of the honor of Shabbos and Yom Tov. It is obvious that if he is forced and has nothing on which to make kiddush except non-Jewish bread, as is common for Jewish soldiers, he may make kiddush on it.
